WHERE THE CLUSTER WORKS

The Cluster operates in the following type of settings, which are of primary concern:

In some contexts, the Cluster adopts or includes area-based site management.

KEY PRIORITIES

Comprehensive responses to displacement crises that promote alternatives to camps, ensuring camps are a last resort while enhancing area-based management.

Increased pathways to solutions for displaced communities, focusing on early action.

Greater agency of displacement-affected communities to shape humanitarian response, empowering displaced communities in their diversity to participate in decision-making.

Accelerated localization through ownership and decision-making, supporting local actors to lead humanitarian responses.

KEY AREAS OF FOCUS

Alternatives to Camps Seeking alternatives to camps and expanding areas-based site management.	Solutions from the Start Making solutions a core part of the cluster's programming from the start of the response.	Community Engagement Ensuring engagement of communities and IDPs in their diversity and integrating the Cluster's work with the wider humanitarian coordination structure.	Local Leadership Improving local and national capacity to lead and own response to displacement.
Informed Responses Investing in information management and accountability systems to improve responses.	Working Across Sectors Coordination of integrated, life-saving service at site and area level.	Adapting to Climate Change Helping communities prepare for, and adapt to, the impacts of climate change.	Safe and Dignified Environments Working with communities to mitigate risks and enable proactive environments.

The Cluster works alongside communities, authorities, and aid providers to ensure that people affected by displacement can access life-saving assistance and protection, as well as identify paths to solutions guided by the Minimum Standards for Camp Management.
